Judge imposes 'minimum sentence' for terrorist activities

FIVE YEARS FOR DEAN

Bail stands pending appeal

THE Dean of Johannesburg, the Very Rev. Gonville Aubie ffrench-Beytagh, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment after his conviction on a charge under the Terrorism Act yesterday.

The Judge President of the Transvaal, Mr. Justice Cillie, imposed the minimum sentence laid down by law for a conviction under the Act.

He gave the dean leave to appeal and extended his bail of R10 000 pending his appeal.

It was also laid down that the dean's passport be retained by the police and that he report once a week, on Tuesdays, between 8 am and 10 am, to the Hospital Hill Police Station.

The judgment —Pages 7, 11

The prosecutor, Mr. A. H. Liebenberg, SC, had opposed the application for leave to appeal saying the dean's conviction had been based on facts. He said counsel for the dean, Mr. S. Kentridge SC, had to convince the judge that the dean had a reasonable chance of success, reports Sapa.

The judge also allowed the defence 14 days in which to formulate an appeal, saying it was an invidious task at this stage to formulate such grounds.

He said that, should Mr. Kentridge find 14 days not long enough, he would consider an extension at the time.

As the Judge President read the sentence, the Rev. Ian Thompson, a young Presbyterian minister stood up and demanded to be sentenced with the dean.

Emotionally

Speaking clearly, but emotionally, he demanded to be sentenced on the ninth allegation which dealt with the receipt and distribution of money from the banned Defence and Aid Fund. He was dragged out of court.

He is to appear in the Pretoria Magistrate's Court today on a contempt of court charge.

The Judge told the dean: "I find you guilty of participation in 'forbidden' activities. I have given a great deal of consideration to what I have to do now."

Mr. Justice Cillie said he believed the dean had acted out of conviction. He said if he considered all the circumstances bearing in mind the position the dean had occupied, "I think this is a case where I should impose the minimum sentence. I sentence you to five years' imprisonment."

Facts

Mr. Kentridge immediately asked for general leave to appeal. He also asked for time to submit his application because he did not have the judgment in front of him.

Mr. Justice Cillie said it was difficult to decide immediately after judgment was given whether leave to appeal should be granted, particularly as the judgment had largely been based on facts.

"Under these circumstances a great deal to appeal subject to the proviso that the full grounds of appeal be lodged in time to be determined."

"I shall give you fourteen days, but if it is not possible to complete it within that period I will grant you an extension," the judge said.

Mr. Kentridge asked that the dean's bail be extended.

The accused has been on bail for many months. The State has his passport and there is no reason why bail should not be extended."

Mr. Liebenberg opposed the application, saying the dean's conviction had been based on facts. There were different considerations now.

"Five years was a long-term period of imprisonment and was a factor to be taken into account. If the police decided to grant bail he should take the new circumstances into consideration."

Mr. Kentridge said the dean

Woman beats off The Maniac

By MIKE ENGELBRECHT

A 23-YEAR-OLD mother was attacked by the so-called Pretoria sex maniac in her Glen Edeln flat-mate's home yesterday while her two small children cried helplessly.

The maniac, believed to be the man dressed in a green shirt and cream colonial trousers, went to the front door shortly after noon today.

He told the woman that he had come to inspect the electric plugs in the house.

She let him in and after he had tested a number of plugs he went to the bedroom. He called her there and said that the plug in the bedroom was heavily overloaded.

The next moment he threw her on the bed when threatening her with a screwdriver. He started caressing her.

Then he ripped off her dress with the screwdriver.

The woman resisted and grabbed a cushion and hammered him on the head.

She started shouting but attacked then began to rain blows on the woman.

The woman put on another dress and chased after the man. An African gardener who overheard them, helped in the chase.

But they lost the trail.

Colonel A. J. Illsley, head of the Germiston CID, said last night that the description given by the woman and others identified with that of yesterday's attacker. The police was also acting against the same methods.

The woman victim was later treated for severe shock and bruises.

The sex maniac, believed to be the man now sought in connection with a number of attacks on women in Pretoria, Johannesburg, the Reef and the East Rand.

Police are making a country search for him and have offered a reward.

Crowd sings for him

Staff Reporter

A CROWD of about 150 well-wishers burst into spontaneous applause and sang "Onward Christian Soldiers," when the Dean of Johannesburg, the Very Rev. Gonville Aubie ffrench-Beytagh emerged from the Old Synagogue in Pretoria yesterday.

There were emotional scenes as the crowd surged forward when the dean emerged.

Throughout the day, the courtroom was packed as silent onlookers listened to the Judge President of the Transvaal, Mr. Justice Cillie, reading his judgement.

In the upper gallery crowd, were more than 20 Non-Whites. Diplomatic observers included the British Ambassador, Sir Arthur Snelling, Mr. E. McHale, of the American Embassy and Mr. Patrick Biggie, the British Consul in Johannesburg.

Other prominent spectators were the Progressive Party MP for Houghton, Mrs. Helen Suzman, Archdeacon Norman Lloyd, of the Anglican Church, the Archbishop of Cape Town, the Most Rev. Robert Selby Taylor, the Dean of Pretoria, the Very Rev. Mark Nye and Mrs. Helen Joseph.

NON-STOP

After his preliminary remarks, Mr. Justice Cillie began his judgment at 10.05 am. He continued through what would be normally have been the tea adjournment and, but for an adjournment between 12 and 12.45 pm, continued non-stop until the proceedings were completed about 3.30 pm.

When judgment began, the dean, who had been given permission to remain seated, listened intently, chin in hand.

He was pale and outwardly calm during the entire judgment. When sentence was passed, he nodded slightly to the Judge and appeared to fumble for his seat.

When evening parishioners came forward to communicate, he kissed women and seemed close to tears.

He also seemed close to tears when he was mobbed outside the court.

When he arrived in the morning, there were loud cheers and shouts of encouragement from well-wishers. He did not pause to talk to anyone, but smiled for a battery of local and overseas Press and television cameras before going into court with his attorney, Mr. Raymond Tucker.

Dugard: Terror Act 'monster'

Staff Reporter

THE TERRORISM Act had become a monster in South African society, and its repeal should become the aim of all right-thinking South Africans, Professor John Dugard, Professor of Law at the University of the Witwatersrand, said yesterday.

"The prosecution and conviction of the Dean of Johannesburg has drawn attention once again to the Minister's interpretation of the Act and the severe restrictions it places upon freedom of speech and freedom of political activity," he said.

Churches and universities would have to take note that certain subjects were virtually taboo and beyond discussion.

IMPOSSIBLE

"The morality of violence, and civil disobedience, for instance, are subjects which will be future be practically impossible to discuss, despite the fact that they are widely debated in most Western countries.

"The dean's prosecution and conviction showed the far-reaching restrictions on political activity imposed by the Terrorism Act, Prof. Dugard said.

"Events of the past week highlight the horrifying measure of the discretionary trial section of the Act."

Seat of trouble

BIDDERTON.—Ten national servicemen are in the military hospital at Tempe after a fight on Saturday between members of the Special Service Battalion and No. 1 Parachute Battalion.

A military spokesman said yesterday: "Members of the Parachute Battalion felt their particular seats at the local discotheque had been occupied by SSB men.

"They eventually went back to their unit and simmered over this until they worked themselves into such a state that they decided to have a go at the SSB across the fence.

"They did so and a fight ensued by inter-unit rivalry ensued. Nine SSB men and one Parachute Battalion man are in hospital."

One trainee had a broken jaw, the spokesman said, but the others were not seriously injured.

Brigadier D. J. Campbell, SM, MC, Officer Commanding Eres State Command, said they had sent notifications to the parents as they always did when anyone was admitted to hospital.

"Before they have been informed, the names of the men in hospital will not be issued."

Brigadier Campbell said investigations into the incident were being made and an inquiry would be held.

Wave toll now 5 000

NEW DELHI.—The death toll in the flood-swollen Godavari area of Eastern India is now 5 000, but it may be as high as 20 000.

Damage has been so vast that only yesterday were reports filtering through — three days after the cyclone struck.

Local political leaders fear that the revolting loss of human lives and the toll in cattle, crops and property will be even higher.

The area worst hit by the cyclone, with its 224 km/h winds, were the Andhra Pradesh coastal districts of Orissa State.

Alter Sect. 6 —UP demands

By BERNARD WESSELS
Political Correspondent

THE UNITED PARTY is to demand the revision of Section Six of the Terrorism Act—the law under which Ahmed Timol was being interrogated when he jumped to his death from the tenth floor of John Vorster Square last Wednesday.

Meanwhile in PRETORIA today will be a day of pealing and fasting for Anglicans, Roman Catholics, Presbyterians and Methodists so that they can express their distress at Mr. Timol's death and affirm confidence in the spirit of Mr. Mohammed Essop.

In PORT ELIZABETH last night more than 50 people signed a letter to the Minister of Justice asking for a full inquiry into the detainee's death.

SUPPORT

Mr. Mike Mitchell, the United Party's shadow Minister of Justice, said yesterday the party would do everything in its power to have section six revised.

Although the party had supported the second reading of the Bill in Parliament, because special legislation was necessary to deal with terrorists on the country's borders, it had vigorously opposed the section during the committee stage.

"We will again demand that it be revised. The party has always been consistent, and has always demanded its revision," he said.

"We can see no reason whatever why this section should be used in any area where judges are available, as since we ever been given any reason by any Nationalist Minister nor anyone else.

"What reason can there possibly be for wanting to use it when judges are available, except:

● "That you don't want judges to hear both sides of the matter.

● "That you don't want Judges to lay down conditions for the detention."

POWER

● "You have absolute carte blanche to use the detention for interrogation for whatever business you want, especially knowing that you are supported by the Prime Minister, the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Police."

Mr. Mitchell said it was disgraceful for the Minister of Justice to say that the law under which people were detained could be left to the discretion of the police.

"Is he so unconcerned? Is he happy to abandon his responsibilities? It is time these matters, who are so implicated by the enshrinement of their own power which they have wielded for so long, are put in their place.

"It is time for a new government. The United Party will be as tough on terrorists and persons intent on subverting the State as we were in the days when we backed up Mr. Vorster.

"But we will do so with the admitted support of every right thinking and law abiding citizen, by operating through the normal democratic processes and the courts."

Mr. Mitchell said the Government had indicated its responsibility to the public in the country, in the rule of law to our good name, and in the talk in favour of the abrogation of
