Memory of Ahmed Timol lives on!

THE memory of Ahmed Timol lives on.
This became evident when the Azadville Secondary School was renamed after the Ahmed Timol Secondary School, as a tribute to the freedom fighter who died in police custody. Timol died when he was thrown out of the security police offices in the Greys Building in Johannesburg.

The name change was a fulfilment of a desire by Timol's late mother as he, too, was an educator.

It is fitting that the school in Azadville was renamed after the activist — he was a teacher at the Roodepoort High School, which was closed when Indians were moved to Azadville.

An official function to mark the name change will be held early next year.
