

35th Death Anniversary of detainee Ahmed Timol

OCTOBER 27 marked the 35th anniversary of the death of former detainee, Ahmed Timol, in police custody.

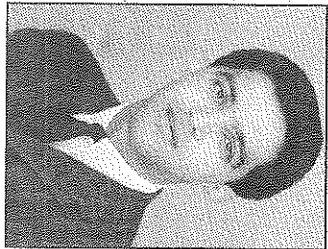

Timol, a former teacher and trained underground activist, was detained at a police roadblock on October 22, 1971.

Five days later police claimed that during interrogation Timol had jumped to his death from the 10th floor of the John Vorster Square Police Station (now renamed the Johannesburg Central Police Station).

The inquest found Timol had committed suicide and that no one was responsible for his death.

Timol's ailing mother, Hawa, made an emotional testimony at the TRC Hearings held in Johannesburg on April 30, 1996. She appealed to the commission to find her son's killers and requested that a school be named after her son.

Former President Nelson Mandela paid a fitting tribute to Timol when he renamed the Azaadville Secondary School to the Ahmed Timol Secondary School on March 29, 1999. None of the policemen responsible for arresting Timol or interrogating him applied to the TRC for amnesty nor were they called to testify.

Hawa Timol passed away in May 1997 without witnessing the renaming of the school and finding out who was responsible for her son's death.

Timol's nephew, Imtiaz Cajebe, said the Timol family are eagerly awaiting closure and appealed to the National Prosecution Authority to assist in this matter.
