

The British Prime Minister, Mr Edward Heath, calls the tune. The picture was taken this week when Mr Heath conducted the London Symphony Orchestra through a 15-minute overture at a packed charity concert in the Royal Festival Hall. He pushed the orchestra through Elgar's "Cockaigne Overture" with a vigour that left him breathless and had the audience shouting for more. The principal conductor was Andre Previn.

Rhodesia's Africans warned

The Star's Africa News Service

ALBANY — Rhodesian officials have warned Africans not to contemplate a vote in the proposed referendum constitution.

The warning came from Dr Ian Smith, leader of the opposition Centre Party.

He said, "One thing which would wreck Rhodesia's chances of emerging as a peaceful state would be a rejection of the 1961 Constitution. Africans boycotted a constitution which they regarded as a political blueprint.

Africans had paid for this too, with 10 years of racial, social and economic degradation and even atrocities," he said.

The Africans boycotted the 1961 multi-racial constitution when a reign of terror instigated by hard-line African nationalists and extremists intimidated, assaulted and even murdered if they registered as voters.

DETAINÉES: NEW FACTS FOR SUZMAN

Political Correspondent

MRS HELEN SUZMAN, Progressive Party member of Parliament for Houghton, has once again been refused permission to visit detainees being held by the Security Police under Section 6 of the Terrorism Act.

But she emerged from an hour-long interview with the Minister of Police with considerably more information about the detainees and their conditions of detention than had been released so far.

In an interview today, Mrs Suzman said she had put a number of points to Mr S. L. Muller and she had made a number of requests. During their discussion, the Minister told her that:

- All the detainees were in good health and they would be given full medical attention should this become necessary.
- Mr Mohammed Ezzop, who was treated in the R.F. Verwoerd Hospital and later in a prison hospital and whose treatment involved a Supreme Court case, was no longer in hospital and was now in perfect good health.

• All detainees were now being fed very good food, and it was no longer necessary to allow them to receive food from outside. (Mrs Suzman said detainees families had confirmed to her that the detainees were now being fed from an officers' mess).

• Magistrates were visiting detainees regularly as required by the relevant sections of the Terrorism Act and they were submitting the necessary reports.

• In a few cases, detainees had been allowed to see visitors.

• The police were working hard on the different cases involving the detainees in order to bring them to a speedy conclusion.

Mrs Suzman said she asked the Minister whether the detainees had been informed that they were allowed to make requests for representation to the Minister of Justice regarding their detention.

The minister said that the detainees were told that this information was available to them, which Mrs Suzman knew, which Mrs Suzman said.

Mr Muller said he would look into it.

Mrs Suzman said she asked him whether it was possible to have regular visits to the detainees, and the minister said that the detainees were visited because they had been told that their families should have been considered in the treatment of individuals in the group, and the minister said from place to place.

He said that it was possible to have regular visits, but would depend on the circumstances. He said that Mrs Suzman pointed out that the minister had said that the detainees were visited because they had been told that their families should have been considered in the treatment of individuals in the group, and the minister said from place to place.

'Fraud against Black man'

Staff Reporter

SEPARATE development—and the Christian Church—came under heavy attack when the three-day "Black Theology" conference held at St Andrew's Lutheran Mission in Rondebosch ended yesterday.

Mr Eric Koen, a South African Students' Organisation (SASO) member, said it was a form of colonialism aimed at exploiting Africans even further. It also divided them as a people for the benefit of Whites.

Under the system, it was preached, where Africans should live, work, how they should try to work and what else they had to pay for transportation.

Africans had also been stripped of some citizenship and had to pay penalties out of nearly every all their lives.

As part of the development, coupled with the formation of a union, and those who worked under the system could not be the true leaders of the Black people, he said.

Former delegates had listened to Mr Thembu Seno, president of SASO, talk on the Theology of Man.

He said that the Church was one of the institutions that perpetuated that myth of Black inferiority. It beat and ostracized the conscience of Black people. It supplanted their simple faith in a God of creation with that of the God of power.

He also charged that Black theology looked upon man's goodness as self-centred and emphasized man's faith in himself.

Beware Chinese — Botha

GRAAFF REINET — The communist forces — and they were mainly the communist Chinese — were behind the terrorist activities on the northern borders of South Africa, the Minister of Defence, Mr F. W. Botha, said here last night.

This was not because they despised apartheid and wanted to bring the Government down but because they wanted control of the sea route around the Cape and a rich, unspoiled and stable government.

Addressing a Nationalist meeting in the town hall, Mr Botha appealed to all South Africans, irrespective of language group or political affiliation, to build stronger bonds of unity and make South Africa the patchwork of Western civilization and democracy.

A LETTER

Mr Botha quoted a letter from a doctor of world repute, whom he did not name, who had gone to Mozambique to study the medical side of the fight against terrorist activities.

WE ACTED TO KEEP
SAYS
GOUS

THE TOWN. — There had been an immediate danger of small clashes between Whites and Coloureds after the All Blacks-South Western Districts Rugby match at George, the Commissioner of Police, General J. P. Gous, said yesterday.

Police had intervened to restore order, he said, although, as has happened at such Rugby matches, there were at least double the number of Non-White spectators present in relation to available space," the Commissioner said in a statement to Sapa.

As a result was that the police were having difficulty in keeping the unruly crowd under control.

Objects were frequently thrown at the police. Immediately after the match some of the Non-Whites started throwing objects like apolo boxes, bottles and vacuum flasks in the direction of the few policemen on the field. Some policemen were hit.

HIST FIGHTS

A considerable number of Non-Whites and Whites rushed onto the field and several fist fights broke out.

Although some of the policemen had to draw and brandish their batons, but they struck no reported injuries and did not injure anybody.

Yesterday evening, pending yesterday that the scene at George was "highly combative" and "unpleasant." "I fear the police reported. All the same, they like the way they did at George, with dozens of Coloureds, Whites and Non-Whites, the police and their batons were used to restore order. The police did not strike anybody and did not injure anybody.

They were seen to police with a baton, but they did not strike anybody and did not injure anybody.

Explosions scatter pamphlets

STAFF REPORTER

TWO EXPLOSIONS in Johannesburg yesterday afternoon scattered hundreds of subversive pamphlets at Faraday Station and outside the "Rand Daily Mail".

Similar explosions took place in Cape Town and Port Elizabeth and Durban.

The blast at Faraday Station took place during the rush hour, but none of the hundreds of African commuters was hurt.

The explosive device went off near a nightwatchman's shack under the M1 motorway.

Mr. Samuel Nkosi, a council nightwatchman guarding building equipment near the scene, said: "I was about seven paces from the explosion. Lots of papers shot into the sky and some were hurled as high as the overhead motorway."

Mr. Nkosi said he had not seen any suspicious people.

"A lot of people picked up the papers and took them home," he said.

CARRIER

Soon afterwards, another explosive device with a second batch of subversive pamphlets — all apparently published by the banned African National Congress — was discovered on the paving outside the "Rand Daily Mail" building in Moor Street.

The innocuous-looking supermarket carrier was discovered by a messenger working for South African Associated Newspapers, Mr. Joseph Sibuya, 55.

Passing the spot a second time, he saw the bag was still untouched and informed the commissioner.

A night watchman, Mr. Simon Mtatene, then took the carrier to the editorial offices

U.S. TOLD TO OUST RUSSIAN MISSILES

TEL AVIV. — Israel has called on the United States for the removal of Soviet-Egyptian missile batteries deployed in the Suez Canal area in violation of the six-day-old Middle East ceasefire.

General Moshe Dayan's demand is seen as putting the onus squarely on the United States to show that its peace plan was effective. "It is being closer the moment of truth," Israel Radio's diplomatic correspondent said yesterday.

The plan was jolted again yesterday when Israeli jets launched their first strike into Jordan since the ceasefire, attacking a guerrilla base which had shelled the settlement of Ashdot Yaacov on Wednesday night. — Sapa-Reuter.
